One control board for all models - and countless possibilities with one app. This is our goal: one control board for all units of the KOMFORT series. Step by step we will shift the KOMFORT units to the new control system. This provides the following advantages: simple and intuitive setup and control via app, without a computer. The app is always included in the delivery and can be downloaded for free. The S21 control board enables integration in BMS and smart home systems. Of course you can still use the existing control panels. The new control panel S22 is the equivalent to the current control panel S14 - perfect for the final user to choose from preset ventilation speeds and to make basic settings. The control panel S22 is also available as WiFi version. In addition, we developed the control panel S25 which allows professional settings, almost like the app. S25 is comparable to the previous control panel S11 and will replace it. In the overview table for the S21 control board you will find the most important facts and already available KOMFORT models.
